4 COVID-19

As a Trust we have taken all reasonable steps to protect our children and staff from COVID-19 and are committed to continually reviewing our policies in response to Government guidance relating to the pandemic. Where changes to Government guidance impact on policies which require additional or changes to existing practice these have been formally communicated and enable the Trust to review any changes implemented during and after this pandemic. By implementing this process in response to Government COVID-19 guidance we are ensuring that we continue to deliver safe and effective care for all our service users and staff employed by The Trust. Changes to school practice forced by the pandemic have been risk assessed and signed off by the Trust Board. This commitment includes training managers and all other employees about their rights and responsibilities under the equality, diversity and inclusion policy. Particularly serious complaints could amount to gross misconduct and lead to dismissal without notice. Further, sexual harassment may amount to both an employment rights matter and a criminal matter, such as in sexual assault allegations. In addition, harassment under the Protection from Harassment Act 1997 – which is not limited to circumstances where harassment relates to a protected characteristic – is a criminal offence.
